SPECIALTY CLINICS

BCAP Extern Clinic: This clinic is held at the Boulder County AIDs Project. Student interns treat HIV positive/AIDs clients with acupuncture for side-effects of medication, wellness, and a variety of health conditions.

Five Element Clinic: In this specialty clinic students will explore the classical acupuncture channel systems and/or the Five-Element acupuncture model. Patients are engaged with on a physiological, psychological, and spiritual level, supporting evolution and healing within all dimensions of life. Students will explore integrating eight principal pattern differentiation and physiological dynamics with mental, emotional and spiritual gestures to touch the heart of the complex synthesis that defines Chinese medicine. Students will have the opportunity to work with the divergent meridians, eight extraordinary vessels, Luo vessels, cutaneous regions, sinew channels, and the primary meridians based on what specialty class(es) they have taken and which dimensions of acupuncture they want to explore.

Dr. Tan Pain Specialty Clinic: In the Dr. Tan Balance Method clinic the focus is on practicing two of his six systems of acupuncture: Acupuncture 1,2,3 and The Global Balance. Acupuncture 1,2,3 is for pain problems while The Global Balance is for internal zang-fu and emotional problems. This clinic uses primarily distal acupuncture points for treatment.

Golden West Extern Clinic: This treatment site is an independent/assisted living center for seniors who are treated in a community style setting. In this clinic students treat a variety of acute and chronic conditions in gerontology using mainly distal and auricular acupuncture points.

Herb Clinic: One of our faculty herbalists and up to seven advanced students will formulate an herbal prescription or recommend an herbal product based upon your individual needs. This formula will be updated in follow-up visits as needed.

Japanese Clinic: These clinics use a variety of Japanese styles, with an emphasis on Japanese therapeutic massage techniques. Techniques of needle insertion and manipulation are very gentle. Supervised student interns treat patients.

Professional Clinic: An opportunity to be treated by our expert medical staff in a respectful learning situation. A licensed practitioner gives the treatments with students observing.

PTSD/Stress Disorders Specialty Clinic: The focus in a PTSD clinic is on acupuncture point combinations that help nourish and support, in conjunction with auricular therapy point combinations to release neurotransmitters involved in pain perception that address the deep limbic system, or "emotional brain." The goal is to help calm the sympathetic nervous system and the constant fight-or-flight mode often found in clients who suffer with PTSD and constant stress. Clients report significant improvement in sleep, pain perception, energy level, mood, and overall wellbeing.

Sports Clinic: A specialty clinic that focuses on musculo-skeletal disorders, injuries and performance enhancement.

Tui Na Specialty Clinic: The Tui Na clinic helps students to apply the knowledge and skills of Tuina to real patients to improve the chief complaint quickly. Tuina treatments are combined with minimal needling. This clinic helps students gain more confidence in dealing with complicated cases.
