

Transferring from Another Acupuncture/Oriental Medicine College

Southwest Acupuncture College accepts students in good standing who wish to transfer from another acupuncture college. Transfer students must first meet the admission requirements of Southwest Acupuncture College. Official transcript from the previous college, as well as all application documents, must be received before acceptance into the program can be decided. If a transfer student applies mid-semester, Southwest Acupuncture College can offer a conditional acceptance pending receipt of an official transcript with final grades from the previous college.

Credit for courses previously taken at another acupuncture college may be transferred into the program if all of the following criteria are met:

1. The course is listed on an official transcript.
2. The course meets the hour and credit requirements of the equivalent class at Southwest Acupuncture College.
3. The student received a passing grade equivalent to the SWAC standards for that course (B- for core curriculum and C for everything else). Transfer credit cannot be awarded twice for the same class.
